

BeerPal

A social platform where people can rate beers and share their reviews.
Ever felt like you need to keep track of all the tasty beers you've been drinking?
Ever wanted all your friends to know which beers you've tasted, and what you thought of them?

Now you can make this dream become a reality! With the BeerPal you can save all the beers you drunk in one place! Post reviews about them, post about where you drank them and add a score to them! You can connect to your friends to see what they've been drinking, and where. You can see the users' average score and read users' reviews about your and others' favourite beers.

System description:

The system consist of six entities: User, Post, Brewery, Beer, Review and Location.

In the app or the web application users can be created/changed/deleted. A user will make posts when she/he drinks a beer. She/he will add a beer and a location. If he/she want, other users can be tagged on this occasion. When adding a beer, the user is asked to rate and write a review about it. If the beer does not exist yet, the user is asked to add it (including its brewery). Users can view all beers and see the average rating for every beer, and sort by type, alc/vol, rating etc. The average score of a brewery's beers and a list of its beers can also be viewed.
